Reacting to the Past consists of elaborate games, set in the past, in which students are assigned roles informed by classic texts in the history of ideas. Pioneered by historian Mark C. Carnes, Reacting has been implemented at over 300 colleges and universities in the U.S. and abroad. Learn more about this active pedagogy by experiencing a game for yourself at the Hudson Valley Regional Conference, co-hosted by Mercy College.

Featured Games:

Rousseau, Burke, and Revolution in France, 1791

Challenging the USDA Food Pyramid, 1991

Dr. Carnes will give a keynote talk based on his book, Minds on Fire.

The conference will also include a Saturday afternoon panel on High Impact Practices across the disciplines.
